Mape Park drug use spurs talk

A visit from a group of concerned teenagers highlighted Tuesday night's Citizens' Advisory Committee(CAC) meeting at the Valley Community Services District headquarters, as the youths spoke to the issue of drug problems at Mape Park.

Originally, the CAC seemed to favor stricter enforcement by police, fences, etc., but the teenagers suggested that the problem was more from boredom.

If there were more things to do, they claimed, less teenagers would turn to drugs.

Joe Covello, CAC chairman, said "The kids had some pretty good ideas" and the committee asked that they return with a written report on what is needed.

The CAC also asked that the teenagers list what they would like and what they wouldn't like to see done by VCSD.

Along the same lines, the CAC indicated that they will invite Hotline Director Candy Ingram to the next meeting to discuss the drug problems, and the need for activities for teenagers, and what can be done without them.

The committee also considered the tennis facilities at Dublin High School ,but decided not to recommend anything.

Board members felt that the VCSD should handle any requests to the Amador School District for surfacing of the courts and so declined to make any recommendations.

Despite an attack of sorts from VCSD Vice President Ron Hyde, the CAC did not discuss the meat of his charges at all and his statements were not reported to the CAC.

Other routine items were considered by the CAC, including a reorganization of some CAC subcommittees and a request to the VCSD board to consolidate all the parks' plans into one package that would be available to the public.

Drawing a crowd

That's what coaches tell you the ball will do and that's what the first round of the first ever North Coast Sectional basketball tournament did last night at Dublin High. Here Amador's Jeff Hine (33), Rob Yackley and Rich Hall (32) close in on Livermore's Ed St. Clair in league action. That same kind of defense was Amador's strength throughout the long season. See Sports for further details on its success last night. Amador beat Hayward 58 to 54 last night. (Times Photo)

Puccio group paid for 'Demo' letter

A letter sent Wednesday by "Democrats for Good Government" which calls 15th Assembly District candidate Floyd Mori "totally unacceptable" was financed by Republican Guy Puccio's campaign committee.

The letter lists 22 names and cites "facts" about Mori which "disturb us as Democrats." It was signed by Robert Garrett of 526 Murdell Lane, Livermore. At least one of the people listed in the letter, the Rev. William Nebo of Livermore, said he had no knowledge of it and does not "want my name connected with a letter like that."

Puccio admitted the letter was sent with his knowledge and under the auspices of his campaign committee. It was mailed to 13,000 Democrats and voters who declined to state party preference and cost $1,300.

Although Puccio's name appears nowhere in the letter and his campaign committee is not identified, Puccio said that it is legal and proper since the "Democrats for Good Government" are "under the control" of his committee.

Puccio also said he approved the letter only after being assured "everything in it was factual" and it was mailed to give Mori sufficient time to respond to it.

He admitted to The Times, however, that portions of it may not be factual and, if that is the case, he is willing to hold a joint press conference with Mori and refute any statements that are untrue.

One statement in particular bothered Puccio. It reads, "During this campaign, Mori has made himself almost totally inaccessible to the voters. He has repeatedly refused to meet his opponent publicly and to discuss our district's problems openly and candidly. His position on most issues remains a mystery." Puccio said, "I don't believe that's factual. In the last 10 to 14 days, Mori has been willing to meet us anywhere."

Many Democrats, such as Livermore Councilman Don Miller and Zone 7 Director Bob Pearson, who were dissatisfied with Mori's primary victory Feb. 4 have publicly voiced those feelings but none of their names appears in the letter.

According to that letter, "Democrats for Good Government" consists of Tim Baird, Carmen Garrett, Bob Garrett, Walter Bullard, Walter Hanhy, Judy Hanhy, Maria Butts, Edwin Butts, Pete Terrazas, Tilomena Gonzalez, Pedro Rodriguez, Gordon Smith, Elinor Young, Kathy Dahlbacka, Max Cazarez, Alice Martinez, Peter Martinez, the Rev. William Nebo, Luise Heath, Dawna Rudder, John Rudder and James Needles.

The letter claims:

— "Mori was an active Democrat for Nixon during the 1972 Presidential campaign."

— "After winning our party's nomination this month with only 18 percent of the total vote, Mori boasted that he had defeated the 'Democratic Machine.' A so-called 'machine' made up of men and women who have long fought for good government and against the special interest domination of politics."

— "Mori has consistently refused to accept any of the campaign reforms proposed by his opponent. He won't limit his spending. He won't limit lobbyists and special interest contributions. He won't limit the influence of big money in his campaign."

— "Mori has flip-flopped on the equal rights amendment; and, he has no qualms about '... developer's practice of an all-out ravishment of the Valley,' according to an editorial in the Independent, dated February 16, 1975."

The letter continues, "Like us, you may have worked for one of the many candidates in the primary election. As volunteers, we have worked for dozens of good Democratic candidates over the years — because we believed in what they stood for.

"But this time it's different.

"We can't, in good conscience, support the man who will — by a fluke — represent our party in the March 4th runoff election. He is totally unacceptable to us as Democrats who believe in open, honest, straightforward government." —Pat Widder

Light turnout at school forum

Candidates for the Amador and Pleasanton school boards have five more days to present their views, and judging from Tuesday night's turnout at a candidates' forum, they'll need every minute in order to arouse voters.

Only 29 persons, including the board aspirants, came out for a League of Women Voters-hosted forum.

Amador board candidates (in the manner they'll be listed on the ballot) are as follows: Charles E. Beazley, incumbent; Douglas Victor Dollard, educator; Geraldine P. Donaldson, pediatrician; Mayo H. Miller, incumbent.

Pleasanton Elementary candidates and their listing Betty Nostrand, housewife; Jack W. Pearson, administrative engineer; Joseph E. Schwab, incumbent; Raymond J. Serafin, chiropractor; Alfred N. Thome, parent and businessman.

The League forum, moderated by Penny Deleray, asked candidates to answer three questions: 1) How does the concept of participative management effect the students of our district?, 2) Aside from finances, what do you consider the biggest single problem facing our district?, 3) What are your major goals for the school district?

Seven of the nine, all except Miller and Schwab, provided written responses which were made available to those attending Tuesday night's session.

Questions from the audience followed. The initial question to elementary board hopefuls asked, "Do you know about the Advanced Learning Program and Mentally Gifted Minor program, and do you believe in them"?

Pearson said he did believe in both, though not being familiar with ALP.

Schwab indicated he was "somewhat opposed" to programs, "if it means getting federal and state funds."

Mrs. Nostrand said the money for such programs "comes from the state at present, but the funds are not adequate ... plus their are strings attached that are not compatible."

On "collective bargaining, are you in favor of it and, if so, do you believe in the right to strike"?, candidates responded as follows;

Serafin indicated opposition, adding "arbitration would be my answer."

Schwab answered obliquely, "We have never had any major confrontations in the six years I've been on the board and that includes meet and confer sessions. There's nothing that we've done that's been without intensive parent participation."

The Stull Bill, generally dealing with evaluations, brought one decisive comment, that coming from Mrs. Nostrand who declared favor for evaluating of administrators by teachers.

The subject of discipline produced some pointed responses after Serafin said "a good ol' whack on the bottom" often was the best form of disciplining. He added that his philosophy was one of "looking on children as my own when in our home."

Schwab expressed strong opposition to this. "I have five children and they are all individuals. I really don't think you can delegate corporal punishment to teachers." He voiced opposition to corporal punishment.

Thome said discipline could be maintained without resorting to corporal punishment.

Serafin said later, in answer to a question about the hyperactive child's capacity to be disciplined, "It's (hyperactive) sometimes just an excuse. It's hard to determine sometimes if the child or parent is hyperactive."

On the question of "Where would you make cuts, if necessary, from the budget"?, Thome replied they would have to come from supplies, textbooks and contractual services ... "and from the top (administration)".

High school candidates were queried on their stand regarding collective bargaining.

Beazley commented, "They (teachers) must establish credibility with us (board) and we with them in order to proceed effectively."

Dr. Donaldson felt the teachers "have always been knowledgeable and have understood what we had to work with."

Dollard, Donaldson and Beazley all expressed opposition to MGM-type programs.

Gas tax funds are projected for the valley

The local share of state gas tax and highway user revenues is going to be somewhat better than first predicted, but still not enough to keep pace with the inflation gap between last year and this.

The State Controller's office has released the expected fund distribution for fiscal 1975-76 in four categories of motor vehicle license and highway user taxes. From that total, City of Livermore will receive just over $864,000; City of Pleasanton will get in excess of $554,000.

Bond bid phase II gets nod

PLEASANTON — Amador Valley Joint High School District trustees finally and officially got Phase II construction at Foothill High School on the road Wednesday evening.

Formal exchange of bonds and coupons for monies with United California Bank was accomplished Tuesday morning and award of bid to Armand Construction Co. was unanimously approved Wednesday.

Director of Business and Operations Doug Rose also asked trustees to approve Louis LaPointe as inspector for the project. He added that Armand representatives have already been on site at Foothill. The project is scheduled for a summer of 1976 completion.

In a second action, Tom Himmelberg was appointed high school summer school principal.

David Cook will be the elementary summer school principal.

SR letter gets quick response

PLEASANTON — A letter from the San Ramon Homeowners Association to the Environmental Protection Agency has prompted a swift response from the City of Pleasanton.

The letter, sent by Mike Wahlig, president of the association, to Paul DeFalco, regional administrator of the EPA, claims the decision of the Valley Community Services District to expand its sewage treatment plant to 8 million gallons a day capacity "does not reflect the desires of local citizens nor of the majority of the VCSD board."

Wahlig "implores" the EPA to "not approve for funding any sewer plant expansion beyond 6.5 mgd."

Pleasanton City Attorney Ken Scheidig wrote to DeFalco to respond to the homeowners association position "in order to provide a more balanced point of view" regarding the sewer situation.

Scheidig cites the 1972 court settlement involving the city, VCSD and local developers in which VCSD was directed to "proceed with the expansion to 8 mgd per day as expeditiously as possible." He also notes the city successfully sued VCSD in November 1974 to force them to comply with that 1972 agreement.

"The position of the City of Pleasanton," wrote Scheidig, "prior to, during and subsequent to this particular suit has been that the need for an expansion of the VCSD plant to 8 mgd is necessitated by past commitments made by the city over which the present city council has no control."

He continued, "The need for an 8 mgd plant is not one which, is based on conjecture, but instead, upon specific obligations which have been incurred at a previous time when it was believed that VCSD could handle all sewage requirements of the City of Pleasanton."

Scheidig also indicated that Pleasanton is "cognizant" of the EPA's desire to protect air quality in the valley and to insure there is no further deterioration of that air quality but stressed, "it also must be recognized that there are obligations which exist at this time which must be fulfilled by this municipality."

He also notes that VCSD is an unincorporated special services district with no control over land use but that district has been "designated as the plant to serve the west end of the Livermore-Amador Valley."

Scheidig asks DeFalco consider environmental factors and also "obligations which exist within the west end of the valley" when determining the amount of capacity that will be allowed in VCSD expansion.

Four hopefuls seek two Amador High seats

The four hopefuls for the two seats to be open on the Amador Valley Joint High School District Board of Trustees have issued their comments on four questions asked by The Times.

Today's article will cover the comments and positions taken by Charles Beazley, an incumbent, and Douglas Dollard, the only non-incumbent in the field.

Beazley is a nine-year board veteran and has resided in the Pleasanton-Sunol area for 15 years. He is a registrar at Ohlone College in Fremont.

The initial question asked both was; Dr. Newlin is carrying on the concept of participative management. Do you think classroom teachers should have some role in it and, if so, what—

Beazley comments, "Dr. Newlin is carrying out the charge that was given to him by both boards at the time he was hired, that charge being the continuation and expansion of the concept of decentralized participative management.

I believe that if participative management system of administration is going to work effectively, teachers, students, parents and staff must become involved in the decision making process and that decisions must be made as close to the level where the decisions have the most affect as possible.

Dollard says, "One of the first issues I see as needing to be dealt with is the very process by which our problems are going to be met. School administrations, perhaps inevitably, provide environments in which administrators involuntarily grow stale and unproductive in their insulated positions.

"There ought to be some instrument of accountability, or at least a vehicle through which administrative challenges can be provided which offer insight or stimulus to those administrators caught up in repetitious functions

"If we fail to adequately supervise those who are responsible for the educational institutions for which we are required to pay, then the blame for their failure to deal with events rests with us and not with them."

The second question asked each candidate states, "What subject areas should be stressed more, and why"?

Dollard spoke more to the instructional staff aspect.

Beazley commented, "I feel there is a need to explore new ways to help students improve reading abilities, writing abilities and the ability to express one's ideas both orally and in writing.

"It makes me very uneasy when I hear and read statistics that say so many students are graduating from high school in this nation who cannot read above the eighth grade level and cannot spell or write with any degree of consistency above 6th or 7th grade level.

"I also feel we need to continue to expand our vocational education program and keep it attuned to the needs of students today."

The third question dealt with the economy and the "specific areas" candidates believe cutbacks could be made, if necessary.

"I am hoping our esteemed legislators in their infinite wisdom will see fit to pass new school finance legislation that will alleviate the obvious inadequacies of current school financing," said Beazley.

"It would be premature on my part to suggest areas where cutbacks could be made.

Dollard's statement did not confine itself to the order of the questions.

A resident of Pleasanton for less than a year, the 29-year old San Lorenzo School District techer commented as follows:

"Teachers are not promoted on the basis of their ability, nor are they rewarded in conjunction with their acmplishments. We often get caught up in facilities, district and state plans for education, and administrative functions without stopping to realize that the purpose of all this should end up in the classroom between instructor and student.

"We often get caught up in the doing and forget that the student is the why for whom we endeavor.

"If there is commensurate reward for achievement, then the performance of the students in their respective subject areas could be a guide on which to base compensatory rewards. It might also be a worthwhile effort to evaluate the relationship between instructional and administrative staffing.

"We have grown somewhat like an army which needs two-thirds of itself to supply the one-third which does the fighting."

The final question asked all candidates was, "How much time in terms of hours per month do you believe will be necessary to spend on school board affairs (meetings, school visits and conferences)"?

Commented Beazley, "We are currently spending between 5 and 10 hours a month on the average at board meetings, visitation, joint meetings, conferences, etc.

"This, of course, does not include 4 to 10 hours a month spent at home preparing for the meeting. If current school financing is not changed and collective bargaining bill passes, I would estimate that the above times could possibly double..

"Students, though it may often be overlooked, are people. They are mature, they are intelligent, they are ambitious, and given an opportunity they are eager learners.

"If students are to be absorbed by our society once they have graduated, which is one of the socializing functions of our educational institutions, then we ought to provide them with the necessary tools with which to deal with society.

SRV school trustee hopefuls give views

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the continued story on candidates' statements in the San Ramon Valley Unified School District Borad of Trustees election, Tuesday, March 4. This article continues the statement of Jerry K. Ott, one of six out of 10 board hopefuls to file qualification statements with The Times)

Administrators, professional educators and pupils should work together to achieve "the educational levels justified by their potentials," he says.

Scholastic achievement and discipline are the areas he will concentrate on if elected, he says.

The two go together, he adds, and says he would like to see motivational counseling used as a "deterrent to disciplinary problems.

"I would like to establish goals of scholastic achievement on which our whole district could focus its attention as a matter of community pride."

Philosophically Ott said he favors a return to a structured classroom environment but wouldn't force it on teachers if they showed their students were maintaining high levels of scholastic achievement.

He proposes, if elected, to provide an alternative to the Alternative Education Program in the district.

He would propose the inplementation of a "fundamentalist" school for parents who believe in structured education.

Teachers who believed in structured classes would teach in the program and participation in the program by teachers and parents would be voluntary.

It would be patterned after Hoover Elementary School in Palo Alto and would provide an alternative to the "open environment" classroom presently being offered by the district.

Ott favors the passage of the May bond election as "our district has inadequate facilities for housing our students and we're growing all the time."

He believes in referring to "vocational" education as "career" education and believes the district should concentrate on preparing students for careers that many will assume after graduation.

He also favors improving the counseling ratio in the district which is presently one counselor for 350 students.

Ott is regional manager for Comptek Research and lives in Danville with his wife Linda and two children.

Jane Clare Upp believes that, if elected, a trustee should "be involved in the policy making for the school system" and to see that "there is economy in the budget but not to the detriment of the quality of education."

The board, she says, should also guide the administration to meet the different needs of students and to see that students are exposed to a wide curriculum.

Students, she says, should have a curriculum that stresses higher requirement in math, english, history and science which "would encourage self - discipline" and expose students to subjects and knowledge they will use in the future.

She also believes foreign languages should have more emphasis in the schools.

"With the complexity of the world today, and the nearness of other countries, every student should have a background in all these basic subjects," she says.

"I want to see the discipline in education, and of education, improve."

Mrs. Upp, the mother of five children ages 5 to 23, says she has been involved in the school system for 18 years and has an additional 12 years during which she was "personally involved and interested in the quality of education for all children."

She is a credentialed teacher and has taught as a substitute and volunteer in kindergarten through the tenth grade for the past 15 years.

She is presently working on a masters degree in education.

She has worked in various fields in the business world and says she has experience in financing, budgeting and working with the public.

As a housewife, she says, she will be available during the days and evenings to attend conferences and meetings and to do research if elected.

She lives in Alamo with her husband John and their children.

Candidates who did not respond to The Times request for statements are M. Allen Shouff, Dwight Sory, Robert Miller and James Olson.

Tests are important for college entrance

Although tests in high school seem to becoming less and less important in determining grades, to go on to college (and especially good schools) tests are vital.

And college graduates of recent vintage can only shudder as they recall the otherwise pleasant Saturday morning that was ruined by the requirement to be at school to take a test at 8 a.m.(8 a.m.??), and then do well on it.

That test, in the '60s at least, had a lot to do with where the student would spend his undergraduate days. Most often it was the American College Testing Program(ACT) or Scholastic Aptitude Test(SAT or college boards) and it was a bear.

A seemingly endless computerized answer sheet was handed out, along with a special pencil, and prospective college graduates were warned to keep their answers inside the bubbles so the computer could read it. The atmosphere was formal, even oppresive, there was a time factor and talking was distinctly discouraged.

The results, in those more competitive days and even to some extent today, could easily determine a person's future.

The pressure was indeed on.

Happily, things have improved somewhat. With a decline in college enrollment it is much easier to get into school than it used to be and at least one counselor, Gene Papa of Dublin, says that the students don't show too much overt concern about the impending SATs or ACTs.

And, too, it is much more common in these financially -troubled times for students to spend their first two years of higher education at a junior college, and then move on from there.

Surprisingly, it is exceptionally easy for a student with average grades to transfer from a JC to a University of California campus, while that same student faces some roadblocks directly out of high school.

Of course, any student with a grade point over 3.1(4.0 would be all A's, 3.5 would be a B+ average, and 2.0 would be a C average) automatically is qualified for the University system. Below that, though, and the tests become all important.

And of course, any student that has fantasies of attending Stanford, Harvard, Yale or the University of Chicago better have some pretty fancy grades to go along with some pretty fancy test scores.

On the SAT, which is required by UC, Stanford and so on, 800 is a perfect score and 200 is the lowest possible score. The ACT top score is around 38, depending on the exact test taken, for each has several parts.

The SAT is broken down into verbal and math, and the best possible combined score is 1600. To get into the UC system, a student with a 3.0 must total 1100(a 1200 score would be in about the 85th percentile, or out of 100 students, 16 would score above 1200) while to get into the State University system, the same student needs only 672.

Also, the prospective UC student must take three achievement tests— one in math or science, one in english composition and one in social studies or foreign language. The student with a 3.0 in high school must total 1650 on those three to get in and must score higher than 600 on the english composition to avoid taking Subject A, or Bonehead English. State University students need take no achievement tests and prospective JC students need only a 2.0 out of high school, although must take the ACT tests as a predictive measure.

"I think anybody that has good comprehension can do well on the tests" says Papa but he does notice some students who have a good grade point average(GPA) and who score poorly on the SATs or ACTs.

"No test is a fair way of measuring anything if it's used exclusively" says the 18 year veteran of education. He believes that the courses a student undertakes in high school and to a lesser extent his GPA are the best predictors of college success.

But good test scores are an absolute necessity for those hopeful of getting in good private schools. A grade point above 3.7 and a combined SAT score above 1400 plus lots of outside activities might get a local graduate into one of those elite schools, but there's no guarantee.

However, at the same time, Papa notes that high school teachers "seem to be de - emphasizing tests", but he does note that "we're revising a lot of our courses to do that" (improve on students' ability to take tests.

Much of that last statement refers to essay tests, which are not that common in high school but ubiquitous in college. "Students come back and say 'I wish we had more composition' " says Papa and indicates that those skills are important in essay tests.

In high school, says Papa, "when they take a course, they're measured more than on just a test". In college, many courses consist of a final, a midterm and a short paper, which puts a large premium on test - taking.

Only about 65 per cent of Dublin High's students go on to college directly, but in almost every field nowadays, some kind of written test is required sooner or later.

The SAT and ACT are high school experiences that will indeed be valuable, if not treasured, in later years. And no one questions their importance. —By Clay Kallam

Woman publisher unashamed of feminine style

lifestyle

By KAREL KRAMER

Joan Kinney, publisher of "The Independent," enjoyed the way she is portrayed in the March issue of "Ms. Magazine" — although she has never, nor does she now, view herself as the all-powerful and self-assured newspaperwoman.

"Kinney learned to be tough early in her career," reads the article by David Denby in the "Gazette, News From All Over" section of "Ms."

"When she first arrived in the Bay Area in 1962 with an M.A. in English from the University of Chicago, eager to be a reporter, she ran into the blank wall of the Establishment press," the article says, and goes on to tell how, at the age of 24, she raised money to launch "The Independent."

'Precisely because I am a woman we rule by consensus.'

JOAN KINNEY
'Independent' publisher directs luncheon staff meeting.

" 'The Independent' . . . was designed by Kinney from the very first as an advocate of the best interests of the community. Hiring an editor known for his independence, she vowed never to let the advertising department dictate policy."

"I was 23 at the time and knew nothing about the newspaper business. I was scared and laying down the law wasn't really appropriate, it wasn't in the cards," said Kinney reflecting on her role in the establishment of "The Independent."

"Even if I wanted to lay down the law, I didn't have the wherewithal to do it because I was young and inexperienced and I didn't really have any training.

"I got my masters in English literature and had nothing to prepare me to be the publisher of a paper. I didn't come on very heave - handed because of my situation."

The editor "known for his independence" was Dana McGaugh. Kinney credits him as the determining force behind the solid separation of editorial and advertising.

"The whole issue of advertising affecting the content of the paper had not even occured to me. It really was Dana who pointed out that most papers have problems in that advertisers, who are the economic basis of a paper, are the ones who also decide what is good for the community.

"Both Dana and I were committed to the public so there was not trouble going along with his view."

Kinney said both she and her staff were disappointed the "Ms." article did not point out the unique way in which the newspaper is run — a factor she credits to her being a female publisher.

"One of the things that makes 'The Independent' unique is the way power is divided up. The reason is partly because I'm a woman. It's as if I don't feel it's quite such a necessity to save face at certain key moments, explained Kinney.

A point in fact is what she said about McGaugh.

"Many times I felt if I were male, I would have fired him. I felt Oh, well. I'm a woman and it doesn't matter if I loose face.' "

"Being a woman meant handling the whole problem of a newspaper in a different style than a man would."

Not that Kinney ever regretted hiring McGaugh.

"Dana was brilliant and beautiful at the same time. One other publisher who considered hiring him said it was like having a Roman candle on your desk."

"I feel being a woman is a major factor in the way I run the business. I negotiate with department heads and the entire staff in a way contrary to the way of most male managers.

"On a day-to-day basis, very few decisions come off my desk. Points of view are offered and negotiated, sometimes with 20 or 30 people.

"I don't rule over the paper. We have some very forceful personalities in a very small space. Precisely because I am a woman, perhaps, we rule by consensus.

"Any business is better off it it can achieve this."

Referring to the image projected of her in "Ms." she said:

"Although I don't have power in the way the article describes me as having, perhaps I have more affection. It's as if I'm not above the group; I'm with the group.

"There's a kind of nuturing and joy I get when I'm not on a pinnacle looking down. I end up getting love when I divide up the power."

Kinney was interviewed for the "Ms." article, which is entitled "Truth With Consequences," by Denby in a telephone conversation from New York which lasted over an hour.

The publisher met Denby, an East Coast movie critic, last summer when he was teaching at Stanford University.

It was a Sunday and she had driven to Kepler's Book Store in Palo Alto to buy a "New York Times." By the time she arrived, all the newspapers were sold so she went across the street to Ken's Pancake House to drown her sorrows in a cup of coffee.

There she spotted Denby with a copy of the "Times" and began to badger him for those sections of the paper he had finished.

He was so impressed that Kinney — a Californian — had driven out of her way for a "Times" that he struck up a conversation and their friendship began.

"I thought the article was very clear and exactly expressed the SAVE issue and the thrust of the paper," said Kinney.

Her only reservations about the write-up, other than the fact that it did not concentrate on the unusual power structure within the organization, was that Denby quoted her as opposing unlimited economic growth.

Kinney explained she was referring to development and housing growth, not retail or industrial growth.

"Economic is a broader term and I meant something more limited," she said.

Summing up her reaction to the article she said loyally "the whole article tended to portray me in more of a glamourous view, as if I arrived on the scene totally centered and powerful.

"The beauty of "The Independent" is the group effort by the staff and our relation with the community.

"Many have supported us over the years and we feel strong obligation to them."

SETTING THE SCENE

Bill Hayden

When Cask and Mask board of directors asked if I'd consider doing a production for their Spring schedule, my first reaction was NO, in capitals just like that! Who wants to get involved with 90 days of extra labor in addition to the daily survival routine? Who wants to take the responsibility for a major production that can't possibly please every member of the group? What play would please the community which has come to expect so much from Cask and Mask?

Me?

The answer to the first question is anyone who has an interest in theatre. The second poser isn't so easy, but one doesn't have to go through life pleasing everyone and a democratic membership means they vote for the guy who looks willing or able to do the job! The last problem, then, is the play to be produced. Should I tackle something old, tried and true? Should we be looking for something new?

When my capital NO became a qualified yes, I ran across something very old — Henrik Ibsen's "Rosmersholm" written in 1886 — a play as new as today and tomorrow. It deals with women's lib; free love; liberal thinking and all of the causes being espoused now except smog in the valley.

As far as I can gather, "Rosmersholm" has not been done on the West Coast in many decades — if ever! It is, therefore, not as well known as "Doll's House" — as "Enemy of the People" or "The Master Builder." This makes it almost a certainty very few people in our area would have had an opportunity to see "Rosmersholm" performed. Ergo, a rare chance for something 'new' in theatre as well as something 'old.'

Plans are to produce the play at the Eagles Hall in Livermore on the last weekend in April and the first two Fridays and Saturdays in May. Rehearsals get underway on March 10, but first we go through the process of general public tryouts. These will be held at The Country Studio, 160 So. K Street, in Livermore between 7 and 9 p.m. Monday, March 3 and Tuesday, March 4.

The cast calls for two women and four men from 30 to 60 years of age. Rebecca West is a 30-year-old woman of strong principles. She is attractive, determined and, at times, willful. Johannes Rosmer is a wealthy man in his middle thirties whose wife has just committed suicide. He is plagued with indecision and us unsure of the path his life should take.

Mrs. Helseth is the housekeeper at Rosmersholm. She is about 60; a strong, outspoken, but very respectful retainer who has spent a lifetime with the Rosmers as many of her family did before her.

Professor Kroll, 55-60, is an ultimate 'establishment' figure. He stands for everything meaning 'social security' for himself and his peers. He is the brother-in-law of Johannes Rosmer. It was his sister who killed herself just before the play opens.

Ulrik Brendel is a colorful socialist; a former teacher of Johannes Rosmer. Although he is the same age as Professor Kroll, he seems much younger. A happy, carefree spirit, he roams the world with a complete lack of inhibition; a man who seems to do quite well without the ecomonic burdens borne by others.

Peter Mortensgaard, 35-40, is the complete radical thinker with a novel twist that surprises even Johannes Rosmer when he offers to join the rebels and renounce his inherited position with the establishment.

All these people are strong, passionate characters who believe in themselves. They are caught in a web of uncertainty, doubt — of innuendo and insanity. Did Rebecca West drive her friend, Rosmer's wife, to suicide? Why won't Rosmer cross the bridge from which his wife leapt to her death? Is there good reason for Kroll to blackmail Rebecca? All these questions, plus a few too many answers, are put to the audience by Ibsen, then he leaves it up to each one to choose his or her version of the story. "Rosmersholm" is a mystery, a love story and a thriller.

George Bernard Shaw, who never underestimated his own talents as a playwright, thought the works of Ibsen to be some of the greatest theatre pieces ever written. Eva Le Gallienne, translating the play into English, says "Rosmersholm" has a great many of the qualities of "Hamlet." It is a very 'Nordic' play and she finds it almost impossible to imagine the story being set in a softer southern climate.

I hope I have intrigued some of the valley's actors into reading for the six roles. The play is a challenge and one that should not only be exciting for an audience, but for the actors who must bring these characters to life and generate the excitement Ibsen wrote into them.

The director hopes to be seeing you next Monday and Tuesday.

Chabot comedy

'Why do you always have to make so much noise?' asks Penelope (Jennifer Riordan) of husband Harold (Ron Whitener). The embattled couple are the central characters in Kurt Vonnegut's play 'Happy Birthday, Wanda June,' the Chabot College humanities division winter production. The curtain rises Friday at 8:30 p.m. at Chabot College's Little Theater in Hayward, and continues with evening performances March 1, and March 6-8. A matinee performance is scheduled March 9 at 3 p.m.

First staged by the company last summer, the production plays at the Walnut Creek Civic Arts Theater, 1641 Locust St.

Tickets at $3 for adults and $1.50 for students and seniors may be reserved by calling the Civic Arts box office at 939-0355.

'Desert Song' evokes romantic nostalgia

Rehearsals are in full swing for the Diablo Light Opera Company's production of "The Desert Song," opening March 7 at the Walnut Creek Civic Arts Theater.

In addition to principle actors, the cast includes a chorus of 40 singers and dancers.

"'The Desert Song' has something for every," reports Director Rhoda Klitsner. "The glorious music of Sigmund Romberg, a romantic old script, and large chorus numbers with dances ranging from military tap to exotic bellydancing."

The production boasts the talent of musical director Nico Snel, Jr., and choreographer Don Wilson, both well-known to area theatergoers.

The original operetta, "The Desert Song," premiered in New York in 1926. Since then three movies have been made of the story. In the most recent version, Gordon McRae portrayed the Red Shadow.

"In our production we are trying to recreate the staging, the costumes and the set as closely as possible to the style seen in the original 'Desert Song,'" comments Mrs. Klitsner. "We are using the original script."

The Desert Song runs Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 through April 19. Tickets are available through the Civic Arts box office, 1641 Locust St., Walnut Creek, phone 939-0355, or by calling 933-5151. Special group rates are offered.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

People with special medical problems, such as diabetes, cardiovascular disease, epilepsy or allergy, are urged to wear an emblem identifying their illness as a safeguard against use of medication that might be injurious or fatal in an emergency, The World Almanac says. Medic Alert, which pioneered the use of informative emblems, says there are some 1.8-million epileptics, as well as diabetics, who may mistakenly be thought intoxicated.

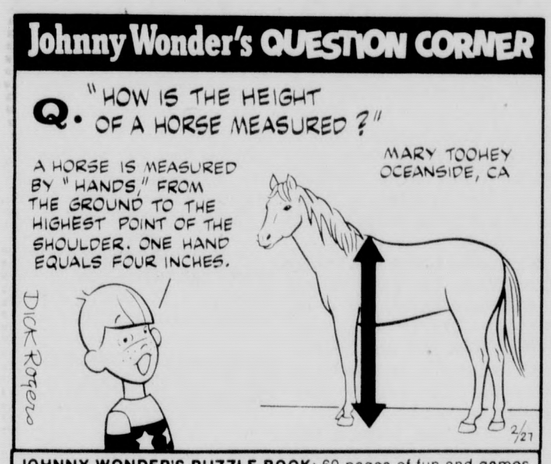
Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER



Q. "HOW IS THE HEIGHT OF A HORSE MEASURED?"
MARY TOOHEY OCEANSIDE, CA
A HORSE IS MEASURED BY "HANDS," FROM THE GROUND TO THE HIGHEST POINT OF THE SHOULDER. ONE HAND EQUALS FOUR INCHES.

If you own a horse or live on a ranch where horses are raised, then you probably already know that the height of a horse is measured in "hands" — a kind of measurement used by the horsemen of long ago who needed a rough-and-ready way of measuring a horse.

One hand equals four inches, the average width of a man's hand.

The measure is taken from the ground to the "withers," the highest point of the horse's shoulder. Thus a horse that stands 14½ hands is 58 inches high.

Most riding and racing breeds of horses stand from 14½ to 16 hands and weigh from 800 to 1,200 pounds.

If a horse is less than 14½ hands in height, it is usually called a pony.

Draft horses are the tallest, heaviest and strongest horses. Some stand almost 18 hands (6 feet high) and weigh more than 2,000 pounds.

They are descended from the great war horses heavily armored knights rode into battle.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

For Thursday, Feb. 27, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Give-and-take is called for today with one whom you're involved with romantically. Hurt feelings stem from inconsiderate actions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone who has been kind to you in the past is in need of a favor. You know you should help but for some reason you won't.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're placing needless strains on a friendship by expecting more than you should. Don't push it to the breaking point.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You won't make any points at home if you hold up accomplishments of outsiders as superior to your family's achievements.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There will be a slight delay regarding some news you've been expecting. This could get you down in the dumps. Relax — it will come.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept.22) Today and tomorrow will be tricky for you financially. Don't go on spending sprees. Try to keep current on old obligations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Normally you try to be considerate of those you have direct dealings with. Today, you're likely to put self-interest way out front.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You will not show the amount of gratitude the incident calls for when another goes out of her way to be helpful to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You will be tempted to form an association with one whose reputation leaves a little to be desired. Watch out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In eagerness to satisfy an ambition, you may tread on the toes of one who wouldn't use the same tactics if roles were reversed.

Sir Lancelot, the best knight of the round table and the best player at the bridge table, took his ace of diamonds and led a trump to dummy's jack. East discarded a spade. What had appeared to be a hand that even Sir Dinadan, the worst bridge player, would have no problem with, had become a real problem.

Lancelot was sure that the right line of play would still bring home the slam, but just what was the right line? Finally the peerless one arrived at a solution based on East holding exactly five spades and not six.

He cashed dummy's ace of spades and played dummy's ace and jack of clubs. East could do nothing better than take his king and play a diamond for Lancelot to ruff.

Now Lancelot started to play his last three clubs. Any time West ruffed, Lancelot would overruff and spread his hand. If West didn't ruff Lancelot would be able to shed all dummy's spades, including the good king, and ruff his last spade.

Looks easy, doesn't it? But just for fun try to make the hand without cashing exactly one high spade before playing clubs.

Dons keep cool for first round victory

It took three free throws in the final half-minute to erase the effect of a wobbly stall, before Amador Valley High beat Hayward, 58-54, last night in the North Coast Section basketball championship opener at Dublin High.

The Dons were comfortably ahead by 14 points halfway through the final quarter, then took their thumb off the Farmers by putting the brakes on the offense.

Hayward drew within three with 31 seconds to play, but two Mike Hill foul shots and one by Ed Costello were sufficient to vault Amador into Friday's semifinal with Bishop O'Dowd.

"We were stalling the ball, and we just had some bad passes at the wrong times," said Amador coach Skip Mohatt, pointing out the obvious.

The Amador victory margin wasn't a true indicator of the team's dominance. The Dons held an eight-to-thirteen-point margin most of the way.

That was despite the fact that Jeff Hine, Amador's 6-4 forward, sat out much of the game with foul trouble. He was called for his fifth personal with 2:05 to play in the game.

Center Andy Finn was the leading scorer for both teams with 15 points, and tied Hayward's Volasgis with 13 rebounds. Finn's board work was vital to Amador in the early stages.

"When we rebounded, we were ahead comfortably," Mohatt pointed out. "But when they beat us on the boards, they came back."

Amador received 11 points each from guard Rich Hall and Ed Costello, who filled in well for Hine.

Volasgis was held to 12 points, and teammate Charlie Ford, averaging 24 points in his last three games, was held to seven.

"Jeff (Hine) had Ford covered well," said Mohatt, "and it seemed to have an effect on Ford even when Jeff wasn't in there."

The Dons produced a handful of field goals on a seldom-seen fast break. Most of the time the points were the result of a steal or a Hayward turnover, and then a quick outlet pass.

"We weren't trying to run the fast break on them," Mohatt said, "but we knew they didn't get back too well, so we wanted get the ball down quickly."

First-night attendance for the inaugural NCS tournament was not spectacular. The crowd was estimated at 1000. Baseline seats were empty. Hayward reported an advance sale of 41 tickets out of its allotted 400.

Hayward seemed near extinction twice in the first half, trailing by seven at the end of a quarter and by 11 early in the second priod.

The Farmers were outplayed all-around, and only managed to pull within eight at intermission when the Dons hit foul trouble.

Amador forward Jeff Hine picked up two quick whistles midway in the second quarter and departed with four fouls at 4:13 to play. The Dons' senior captain played an aggressive first half offensively. He went to the basket for six points.

Finn was the prime mover for Amador, however. He went to work immediately on Paul Volasgis, Hayward's 6-8 center. By intermission, Andy had popped over Volasgis for eight points.

Finn's dominance of Volasgis forced Hayward to insert backup pivot man Tony McGilvery early in the first quarter.

Giants, 58-51

At the Richmond Auditorium, Marin County Athletic League champion Redwood withstood numerous Albany High challenges in the second half to insure a repeat appearance in the same building with a 58-51 victory over the Foothill Athletic League titleists.

Redwood's Jack Hagler led all scorers with 19 points, while Steve Trobbe, at 6-6 the only real Giant on the team, tallied 18.

Redwood maintained a five-to-seven-point lead throughout the first three periods, before Albany reduced the margin to two several times in the final period. However, turnovers reversed the momentum, and Redwood pulled away for five points in the final minute.

Dragons, 89-49

Extending their winning streak to 22 games and their season record to 31-3, the Bishop O'Dowd Dragons blasted the J.F. Kennedy (Fremont) Titans, 89-49, at Cal State-Hayward.

Six-foot senior Grantland Bailey led the Dragons with 28 points. Bailey connected on 12 field goals and made good four of six free throws to finish with game scoring honors.

The quick hands of Finney and Bailey, along with some slick passing by Marrow, enabled the Dragons to run all over the Titans.

Gauchos, 72-67

El Cerrito High held off a second half College Park rally to record a 72-67 first round win at Northgate High.

In the second quarter, El Cerrito led by as many as 19 points, 44-25.

But College Park, behind four long jumpers by Greg Malcolm and good inside work by 6-7 center Bill Brickner, finally pulled to within 11 at the end of the third quarter. In the final period, the Falcons moved to within three, 65-62, with 3:40 to go on a Dan Smith follow shot.

In the waning moments, El Cerrito got a fast break lay-in from Carlos Addison and two key free throws by Ted Morning for a six-point lead which the Falcons could not overcome, though they had several opportunities to do so.

A very successful Running Deer Shoot was held at the Livermore-Pleasanton Rod and Gun Club Feb. 23.

Distinguished — Bill Stratman, Livermore, 37; Cal Rowe, Eagle Rock, 36

Master — Carter Wreden, Livermore 45; Lee Six, Eagle Rock,

Expert — Len Murphy, Tri city, 36; George Eppeneder, Livermore, 35

Sharpshooter — Mark Brown, Eagle Rock, 35; H. Hasuda, Eagle Rock, 34

Marksman — J.J. Amaya, Tri City, 38; Warren Judd, Livermore, 32.

Then there were lots of shooters for the Iron Chicken competition, but the top shooter was Art Borgstede, who went 3-for-3. That means Art knocked over three iron chickens in three rounds. That's good shooting Art.

Off-hand results (rifle).

Expert — Larry Eppeneder, Livermore, 38

Marksman — Karl Mossinger, 38.

Cal Rowe was right in there shooting in the heavy varmint class and turned in a little dinky group of .484 at 100 yards. That is a lot less than the size of a dime you know. Wonder how much Cal would take for his rifle?

Nate Benedict and his fishing buddy, Jim Haughian, headed for their favorite fishing spot aboard the Helen B Saturday. They fished the light buoy area with anchovies. With perfect weather they also had a great fishing day. By 9 a.m. they had a limit for one, then nothing more until around 3 p.m. They wound up with another limit.

A 30-incher was the biggest, and that's a real good salmon in anyone's language, I betcha. Nate and Jim look forward to another trip next week.

Bob Tandy, Benny Tesco and Ken North were also salmon fishing Saturday. They put Bob's boat in the water at Berkeley and did a bit of trolling on the way to the Old Timers Light Ship area. Using anchovies for bait, the three had a limit each. Ken says the largest went 11-plus pounds and they were back in Berkeley by 3 p.m. Real scrappers, those big salmon, Ken reports.

VFW cage action tips off today

Half of the EBAL will be on hand this evening to defend against an expected onslaught from Oakland in the second Livermore City Basketball Classic, sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Four games will be played each of the next three days at Livermore High, with the championship set for Saturday night.

The tournament opens at 4 p.m. today with San Ramon facing Oakland High.

Oakland, fifth rated, and McClymonds, sixth ranked, are the favorites for the Classic championship. Mack won the inaugural last year at Granada.

The co-hosts are gearing for a shot at the Oakland schools though. Granada, which defeated EBAL champion Amador a week ago, plays San Juan of Sacramento at 7 p.m. Livermore, with sensational Ed St. Clair, plays at 8:30 against Acalanes.

McClymonds and St. Joseph's meet at 5:30.

Both Livermore teams could get by the opening round games, which would lead to later showdowns against the OAL clubs.

Two of the top individual stars in the three-day tourney may be Oakland's 6-8 pivotman, Carleton Pierce, and Livermore's St. Clair.

The 6-5 Cowboy forward scored 85 points in his final two EBAL games, and preceded them with a pair of 30-plus point games.

Gaels in Oroville tournament

Minus two starters , Dublin High opens play in the J.C. Nesbitt Basketball Tournament at Oroville today.

First round pairings aren't available yet.

But that's not important because in this event, everybody plays everybody.

Seven teams are entered in the round-robin tournament, and all will play twice daily. The champion is decided on a plus and minus basis, not on a mere victory. Plus points are awarded for the winning side's margin of victory. If the Gaels win by 12, they have 12 plus points. If they lose, they subtract 12.

The rest of the Nesbitt field includes Pleasant Hill of the Diablo Valley Athletic League, Oroville, Colfax, Shasta, and Kennedy and Highlands of Sacramento.

Dublin could be a title contender, though it must play without starters Dave Anderson and Doug Adams, who won't make the trip.

Anderson is involved with baseball practice. Adams is staying home for private reasons, said coach Don Nelson.

Randy Swiers is expected to replace Anderson, and Chuck Hatheway will fill-in for Adams. Everyone will play during all three days however, Nelson said.

Games in the Nesbitt Tournament are shortened to five minute quarters, instead of the standard eight.

Paddys take ot cup win

Sudden death penalty kicks by Kevin Earl and Danny Bynum, and Bynum's block of a penalty kick in overtime, produced the Dublin Paddys' 6-5 win over the San Jose Strikers in State Cup soccer last weekend.

Bynum recorded nine saves in a super effort. Jim Hitcher, David Worthington, Steve McDonald, and David Worthington all scored for Dublin.

The Dublin Shamrocks relied on strong defense to post their third shutout of the State Cup, 3-0 against the Fresno Cougars. Mike Diamond, John Kulak, Eddie Lopez and Todd Vitale were top players. Jason Cummings had two goals, and John Collins, one.

The Dublin Colts rocked Concord, 6-2, as Phil Figone scored three times. David Brownell, Finlay Boag and Kevin Dick had goals. Danny Reyes, David Alvarez, John Citi, Ed Bryant and Mark Jennings played well.

In Spring soccer, the Colts blasted the Newark Toros, 3-0. pan Reyes had two goals, Mike Harmon, one. Steve Cameron had seven saves. Robert Witmer and Ron LaPerle played well.

The Paddys edged San Ramon's Spitfires, 2-1, on scored by Shawn Glieden and David Worthington. Dan Bynum had 17 saves.

Election Notes

FLOYD MORI

Bill Bollinger, District 3 President of the United Steelworkers of America has announced the organization's endorsement of Mori. Bollinger's announcement followed the Steelworkers' full membership meeting.

"Floyd spoke to our group for less than 45 minutes," said Bollinger. "After the meeting, the membership voted unanimously to endorse Floyd and commit the maximum amount of our resources to his campaign. Floyd impressed our members with his sincerity and grasp of the economy."

Mori has charged California consumers are losing millions of dollars each year because financial institutions are not required to pay interest on "impound accounts".

He added, "Many homeowners are now required, as a condition of their mortgage loans, to pre-pay property taxes and fire insurance premiums as part of their monthly installments. What this means, in effect, is that lending institutions have free use of this money for many months before tax and insurance premiums are actually due," he said.

Mori said he supports the intent of a bill introduced in the legislature this year by Senator John Holmdahl (D—Alameda County). The measure would require bank, savings and loan associations and similar lenders to pay their borrowers interest for the use of these impound accounts.

Guy PUCCIO

Guy Puccio, as part of his platform on land use planning, proposes a "dynamic inner-city redevelopment to end blight, attract new commercial concerns, return residences to the city and to reuse or redevelop core lands in a positive and constructive manner."

Puccio added, "Unlike growing or developing communities, which are in the process of integration, cities are at best in an equilibrium state or disintegrating. The problems are dissimilar," he continued, "and I suggest the elimination of inflexible zoning regulations within the inner city. Zoning should not be allowed to impede redevelopment and only minimum criteria, such as a population increment for each project, should be established in a framework for the reconstruction of our cities.

Moving up

Kathy Scribner, junior at Amador Valley High will represent the Pleasanton Lions Club in a speech contest the first week in March at the Zone level competing with winners throughout California and Nevada. Competing with Kathy at the Lion's regular meeting Tuesday night at Hap's were Amador students Mark Zevanove and Michael Croteau. Bob Lane was in charge of the program. Judges were: Charlotte Severin, Gordon Rasinussen, Tom Kourafas and Milton Sluder - Jordan. This year's speech theme was, "America's Future - Where Now."
